

Executive Report

By going through each time that a developer has touched a source file I am able to figure out when and where people are doing their work. Looking at the figure below you can see that it is obvious that some people are doing more work than others.

Some people such as Scott Alexander-Bown work on a lot of different files, but not very often. Or some people like Matthew Rollings work on a few files quite often. Then there are people like altvnr who seem to be contributing not a whole lot to the project.

My Fork: <https://github.com/MrSnoodle01/CS472TeamsRepo>